Dear Community Partner:

Do you believe that children deserve to know what is in the food fueling their growing minds and bodies? There are powerful forces working to hook kids on processed food - taking advantage of their impressionable minds and convincing them that unhealthy is both cool and convenient.

Our school is working to improve health outcomes for all members of our school community and we are looking for community partners who are interested in supporting this effort. As fast food marketers work not just fast, but furiously, to meet their bottom line, we are writing to ask you to help our school pick up speed to meet our goal: improving the long term health and success of our teachers, students and their families.

Our school needs like-minded community members to support a variety of school wellness needs: wellness grant writing assistance, in-kind donations of healthy food and snacks; sponsorship of school-wide wellness events; printing of flyers and other promotional material and more.

On behalf of students, teachers and families, I ask you to support our school by becoming a wellness partner. We hope you will join us in our bid to make our school a leader in the fight to improve the health and wellness of all community members.

Respectfully,
